With House of Light, Mary Oliver further explores her already extraordinary talent. As in her previous collection Dream Work , Oliver continues to write increasingly diffuse and personal lyrics, moving beyond the Pulitzer Prize winner American Primitive , which was a collection of perfect lyric episodes, each precisely balanced between the poet's sharp eye and her loving heart.

Mary Oliver, House of Light (Beacon Press 1990) When Covid-19 was just a cloud on the northern horizon, I borrowed this book from a street library. Poems by Mary Oliver, I thought, are just the thing for the times ahead: she consistently holds out to her reader reminders of what it means to be alive and human on this planet.

~~Mary Oliver's House of Light Meant It All!~~

House of Light is a collection of Mary Oliver's poems which was published in 1990 and earned the L. L. Winship/PEN New England Award. Because Oliver published over thirty volumes of poetry, another reason her work is so widely read is partly because of her prolific published work.

~~House of Light Quotes by Mary Oliver—Goodreads~~

Mary Oliver, 1935–2019. © Rachel Giese Brown. Mary Oliver was an "indefatigable guide to the natural world," wrote Maxine Kumin in the Women's Review of Books, "particularly to its lesser-known aspects." Oliver's poetry focused on the quiet of occurrences of nature: industrious hummingbirds, egrets, motionless ponds, "lean owls / hunkering with their lamp-eyes."
