Seidel's collected poems, Poems 1959-2009 (2009), spans half a century and nearly five hundred pages. In the New York Times David Orr compared Seidel to "a violinist who pauses from bowing expertly through Paganini's Caprice No. 24 to smash his instrument against the wall ... [such a] combination of barbarity and grace is one of Seidel's most remarkable technical achievements."

It is always a treat to see what happens to a poet's work over a long time and this book does that well. Frederick Seidel is not for every reader. Some poems are too dense for most readers, including me.
